DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claim 1 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1,2,4-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kubota et al (US 5,754,172) in view of Koreeda et al (US 2002/0019979).

[claim 1]

In regard to Claim 1, Kubota et al discloses an audio data recording disc storing audio data and a text data manager, the text data manager containing an item text, the item text including a first ID code signal and a second ID code signal, the first ID code signal indicating a main classification rank of an item type of contents represented by the audio data, the second ID code signal relating to a sub classification rank of the item type which is subordinate to the main classification rank (Column 9 Lines 30-40 describes the ID codes of the recording disc as seen in Figure 3. Additionally as seen in Figures 7 and 9 ID codes are present on the disc for classification purposes. As described in Column 10 Lines 40+ through Column 11 Lines 1-55 describes the classification ranking system in respect to genres and more specifically two classification systems "optical course" and "recommended course"). Furthermore the second ID code signal represents that a sub genre of the contents (Column 11 Lines 15+ describes the subgenre as identified as the optional course wherein genres are selected by the user); however, fails to disclose that the second ID code is subordinate to a main genre. Koreeda et al discloses a video and audio retrieving apparatus and method wherein the user displays information for selecting. As seen in Figure 6b and described in Paragraphs 0066 and 0081 provides a second subgenre for additional classification. The use of sub-genres allows the user to store and retrieve items in an easier order as many items could fall under one genre the use of subgenres provide less confusion. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to use the audio data recording device, as described by Kubota et al, and further incorporate a system wherein sub-genres provide the user to store and retrieve items in an easier order through the use of sub-genres, as further described by Koreeda et al.

[claim 2]

In regard to Claim 2, Kubota et al discloses an audio data recording disc as recited in claim 1, wherein the first ID code signal is selected from ID code signals representing fixed main genres and an ID code signal representing that a main genre of the contents is defined by a user, and the item text includes a text, and wherein when the first ID code signal is the ID code signal representing that the main genre of the contents is defined by the user, the text included in the item text indicates the main genre defined by the user (Column 11 Lines 10+ describes the ID code representing a main genre that is defined by a user. The user for classification purposes selects the main genre).

[claim 4]

In regard to Claim 4, Kubota et al discloses an audio data recording disc storing audio data and a text data manager, the text data manager containing a first item text and a second item text, the first item text including a first ID code signal, the second item text including a second ID code signal, the first ID code signal indicating a main genre of contents represented by the audio data, the second ID code signal relating to a sub genre of the contents which is subordinate to the main genre, wherein the first ID code signal is selected from ID code signals representing fixed main genres, and wherein the second ID code signal represents that the sub genre is defined by a user, and the second item text includes a text indicating the sub genre defined by the user (Column 9 Lines 30-40 describes the ID codes of the recording disc as seen in Figure 3. Additionally as seen in Figures 7 and 9 ID codes are present on the disc for classification purposes. As described in Column 10 Lines 40+ through Column 11 Lines 1-55 describes the classification ranking system in respect to genres and more specifically two classification systems "optical course" and "recommended course". Additionally as described in Column 11 Lines 10+ describes the selection of main genre to sub genre and thereby meeting the limitation).

[claims 5 & 7]

In regard to Claims 5 and 7 Kubota et al discloses an audio data recording disc as recited in claim 1, wherein the second ID code signal represents that a sub genre of the contents (Column 11 Lines 15+ describes the subgenre as identified as the optional course wherein genres are selected by the user); however, fails to disclose that the second ID code is subordinate to a main genre. Koreeda et al discloses a video and audio retrieving apparatus and method wherein the user displays information for selecting. As seen in Figure 6b and described in Paragraphs 0066 and 0081 provides a second subgenre for additional classification. The use of sub-genres allows the user to store and retrieve items in an easier order as many items could fall under one genre the use of subgenres provide less confusion. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to use the audio data recording device, as described by Kubota et al, and further incorporate a system wherein sub-genres provide the user to store and retrieve items in an easier order through the use of sub-genres, as further described by Koreeda et al.

[claim 6]

In regard to Claim 6, Kubota et al discloses an audio data recording disc as recited in claim 5, wherein the first ID code signal is selected from ID code signals representing fixed main genres and an ID code signal representing that the main genre is defined by a user, and the item text includes a text, and wherein when the first ID code signal is the ID code signal representing that the main genre is defined by the user, the text included in the item text indicates the main genre defined by the user (Column 11 Lines 10+ describes the ID code representing a main genre that is defined by a user. The user for classification purposes selects the main genre).

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action.
